

TORAY COMPOSITE MATERIALS AMERICA, INC.

Award: Alliance

Contributes to Boeing's success by sharing risk and through long-term relationships that support and advance our strategic objectives.

Q: What does it mean to be recognized as a Supplier of the Year?

A: It is a testament to the combined teams between Toray and Boeing. It also reflects that working relationships can challenge historical boundaries and change the world. We thank Boeing for their ongoing partnership and are truly proud of this prestigious milestone.

Q: How did your company get started?

A: Toray Composite Materials America is a subsidiary of Toray Industries. In 1927, Toray first produced rayon yarn in Japan, and has since expanded globally manufacturing fibers, textiles, chemicals, composites, etc. In 1992, Toray CMA began producing carbon fiber composite materials, enabling an efficient supply stream to U.S. aerospace companies.

Q: What should people know about your company?

A: We are passionate about continuous improvement. Relentlessly pursuing ways to improve safety, quality, compliance, our internal culture and other aspects of the company all lead to improved product quality, greater efficiency and productivity, and most of all increased customer satisfaction.
